

DEMAND VESSEL FOR STENSLAND

Will Ask That A Man Of War Be Sent To Tangiers For The Banker At Once.

CAREFULLY TRACED TO ARREST

Chicago Tribune Responsible For The Arrest Of The Missing Chicago Man Of The High Finance Game.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—Now that Stensland has been arrested the next problem will be to bring him back to this country. In view of all existing conditions Assistant States Attorney Barbour today made a formal demand on the United States government for a warship to bring the missing banker home again.

Credit to Tribune.

Credit is given the Chicago Tribune for their work in the case as they located the missing man, knew his whereabouts Aug. 14th and then kept the affair strictly secret until the arrest was actually made. While Stensland is under arrest, technically he is free as there is no extradition treaty between Tangiers and the United States and should he fight extradition considerable delay would be occasioned. It is believed however that he will come back.

Asks Extradition.

Governor Denison and Acting Secretary of State Adee at Washington have been in communication regarding the matter and with all probability President Roosevelt will be asked to request the government of Morocco to turn the prisoner over to the United States authorities.

Settled by Woman.

It is now certain that the information that led to Stensland's discovery was given by a woman who thought she had been treated badly. Stensland was living under the name of Paul Olson and left New York July 14th, was in England, Spain and Tangiers for some time before being apprehended. He had twelve thousand dollars in a bank at Tangiers when arrested.

Denies Story.

Cashier Henry Heving, of the Milwaukee Avenue bank today denied the statement that President Stensland had called from Tangier that he (Heving) was the author of the ruin of the bank.

Asks Requisition.

Governor Denison at noon issued a request to the secretary of state asking the government to make a request upon the government of Morocco for the extradition of Stensland, and that he be delivered to Police Sergeant Shippy and Assistant States Attorney Olson of Chicago.

SPANISH WOMEN IN DUEL OVER LOVER

Horrible Tale Comes From Lower Class of Fiery Andalusians Living Near Cadiz.

Madrid, Sept. 4.—From Cadiz comes a tale of fierce passion and frenzied jealousy for which the fiery Andalusians have from time immemorial gained a deserved reputation.

A mulatto, from descriptions a gay Lothario, had become entangled in a love affair with two young women, one known as La Rubia (the fair one) and the other a dark skinned beauty named Celia. The thoughtless lover could not or would not make up his mind definitely between his two charmers, and so the hot blooded damsels, neither willing to withdraw, decided to settle the matter by fighting it out. They arranged to meet at midnight at a lonely spot on the seashore, the weapons to be daggers. The duel was to be death, and no quarter given. With howls of rage, the two rivals rushed at each other, and so loud were their cries that they attracted the attention of some fishermen far out in the bay. When the latter arrived on the scene, Celia was lying in a pool of blood, while her rival, herself, wounded in various places, continued plunging her dagger savagely into her victim's prostrate body. With great difficulty La Rubia was dragged away, shouting that it was a case of either of them having to die.

REVOLUTIONARY HAD STATE AT SERVICE

Was Distinguished as Provincial Ambassador and Gained Much Valuable Information.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—A curious sidelight is thrown on Russian conditions by the following story which has reached here:

Last October the district governor of Kharkoff received a visit from a young officer who introduced himself as Lieutenant Podgorski, and represented himself as having been sent by the governor of the province of Kiev to assist the civil authorities of Kharkoff in preventing or suppressing revolutionary disorders. The young man's papers were in perfect order, and he played his part with such consummate art and grace that every facility was placed at his disposal. After two months, Lieutenant Podgorski declared his mission to be at an end and departed to join his headquarters at Kiev. Now, however, the Kharkoff authorities have just discovered that the governor of Kiev never sent an officer to Kharkoff at all. The whole affair was an audaciously conceived and masterfully executed move by which the revolutionary party placed themselves in the possession of much valuable information regarding the political machinery of the district of Kharkoff.

A Pathetic Life

There is something pathetic in the laborious, scrupulous, narrow, plodding existence in ignoble worries over the stock-ticker of the man who said: "When you have made your fortune it will be time enough to think about spending it," and never had the time come for him.—Boston Transcript.

ELECTION DAY IN STATE OF VERMONT; CONVENTIONS

Democrats Of Georgia And Of Minnesota Meet --County And Legislative Primary In Michigan.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 4.—The eyes of the nation are on Vermont. The result of today's election in this state will be significant. It is the straw that will show which way the political wind is blowing. If the republican majority should be light the democrats of the country will consider it an omen of good, while, on the other hand, should the majority be heavy, the country will take it as an indication that the republicans may be generally victorious at the November elections.

The close of the campaign came last night with political gatherings in nearly every city and town of the state. All the assembly known to mortal man in politics has been used to stir up the interest of the voters, with the result that the largest vote ever cast in a state election in Vermont is promised today.

The republican candidate for governor is Fletcher D. Proctor, son of United States Senator Rodfield Proctor. His opponent is Percival W. Clement of Rutland, who is the nominee of the democrats and the so-called independents.

The fight has been waged solely on state issues. The republican platform advocates better schools, better highways, and the thorough care of all state wards on a plan of economy based on efficiency. Among the planks in the platform of the fusionists are retrenchment in state expenses, the formation of a state fund for the construction of permanent highways, and the advocacy of labor measures, including a weekly payment bill, an employers' liability bill and several other measures.

The chairman of the republican state committee claims a majority of 20,000 for Proctor as a conservative estimate. The chairman of the democratic and the independent state committees have issued a statement claiming that the fusion majority will be from 7,000 to 10,000. Governor Bell received a plurality of 731,549 two years ago.

For congressmen, the republican candidates are David J. Foster of Burlington, from the first district, and Kittredge Haskins of Brattleboro, from the second, both of whom are the present representatives of the state in congress. Their reelection is conceded.

Georgia Democrats.

Macon, Ga., Sept. 4.—Harmony and enthusiasm were the keynotes of the democratic state convention which assembled in this city today for the nomination of a state ticket to be elected in November. The sweeping majority of Hoke Smith at the recent primary assures his nomination for the governorship on the first ballot. Notwithstanding the fact that the convention is little more than a ratification meeting it has attracted an unusually large number of visitors from all parts of the state.

Minnesota Democrats.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 4.—The democratic state convention in session here today is the largest convention the party ever has held in Minnesota. More than 1,200 delegates filled the Auditorium when the gathering was called to order at 11 o'clock. After the usual preliminaries had been disposed of, the roll called, and the opening addresses delivered the convention took a recess to permit the committees to prepare their reports. Governor Johnson will be renominated without opposition. Indications also point to a hearty endorsement for William J. Bryan.

Primary in Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—A general primary nominating election is being held throughout Michigan today for all county, congressional and legislative offices.

The commission expects to have its report ready for the November sitting or Parliament. It is said that the insurance act will be reconstructed as a result of the findings of the inquiry.

WILL HAVE RETURNS THROWN ON SCREENS

The Primary Results Will be Made Public as Soon as They Are Known Tonight.

This evening the Gazette will display the returns from the different precincts in the county, a general result of the first congressional district and as much of the results of the state at large as is possible, on a large canvas that will be stretched across the street from the office. A large lantern has been secured for the purpose and Prof. Arbuthnot will be in charge of it. Special wire connections direct to the office will be furnished by the Postal Telegraph company and taken by an expert operator. Special telephones for long distance use only have been installed by both the Wisconsin and the Rock County companies and it is expected that by midnight the general result of the election will be known. Doubtless hundreds will avail themselves of the opportunity to see the returns. No bulletins will be posted in the office but all returns will be thrown on the screen as fast as received.

VIEWS ON LIFE
OF THE ENGLISH

REV. R. C. DENISON TOLD OF TRIP TO GREAT BRITAIN.

INEQUALITY BIG PROBLEM

Is Responsible for Typical English Poverty, Much of the Drinking and Other Ills.

For his address on the first Sunday evening after returning from a vacation trip to England and Scotland, Rev. R. C. Denison yesterday took for his theme a few recollections of English life. He spoke most interestingly with numerous reminis-cences. In part he said: I do not claim to speak with exactness or with authority, nor do I make any claim to completeness in this summary of English life. The justification of this address is this: first,
the incalculable significance to the whole world of the unity of the English peoples, because, though they have their faults, they stand for liberty, democracy, education of the common people, reform, freedom of speech, and the permission of the oppressed to speak; the oppressed have a voice in the English speaking peoples as in no other; the division or weakening of the English speaking peoples would be an unspeakable calamity to the world; second, there is a strong desire in England for a closer unity; there is criticism of America and contempt for Americans in some journals, but the common sense of the nation desires friendship of the peoples.

England is Strengthening.
There is much of similarity in England and America. Our inheritance is the same, our ideals the same, our tasks the same, our religion the same and it is well we stand together and address ourselves to problems of human life, that at least under two flags there may be progress in justice, in democracy and in social righteousness.

Let me say first that the England
of today is by no means a declining power. Her commerce steadily increases. Ever since Mr. Chamberlain predicted a falling off in commerce, the board of trade reports have shown a gradual but unbroken advance. England's ships are on every sea, her coal mines are unimpaired and her wealth increases.

Problem Out of Past
The problems of England arise out of her past. Her great task is to find some way to shake off some of the old customs and habits that impede her growth. In the fine country of Yorkshire I asked about agricultural conditions only to be told that the great trouble was to get the farmers to adopt new methods. They did their work just as their grandfathers
did and refused to make improvements.
They watered their cattle
in drainage water, housed them without ventilation, because it had always been so.

Her Poverty Versus Ours
I believe it is out of the tyranny of these past, old, unalterable conditions that England's great problems arise.
The greatest of them is the problem of poverty. I could not live in England and face the continual spectre of the unemployed thronging the city streets last winter and in the manufacturing cities one sees upon the streets thousands of the ill-kept and ragged children. I met men this summer trying to raise families on fifteen shillings, some $2.75, a week.
Now it is not that we do not have poverty here, it is not that they have more perhaps, but it is a different kind. It is a crushed, a hopeless, a beaten poverty; it is a kind of life
that has cost its spirit and ambition, a life that expects nothing and aspires to nothing. American young men think they can advance and get
on. This condition rises out of the past. Some people in England belong to the underclass. For centuries they have had it bred and trained into them that they are inferiors. They have been emasculated of their ambition and aspiration. That is the difference between English and American poverty. And it is a tremendous difference. We have no such thing in America as the dulled and blunted class of English poor.

Cause of Drink Habit
The great curse of English life—
drink and especially drinking among women—arises directly out of this. It is your man without ambition, with-

School Children
Face Dangers

How They Can Be Protected From Serious Harm.
The children are in school again
and parents will watch their progress with anxiety for many dangers lie in the path of the boy and girl. To thousands of them the confinement of the schoolroom and the duties imposed by their studies are a very serious strain.
Many become broken in health and
are physically weakened for life.

Give your boys and girls good,
pure, strengthening food and you go toward removing all dangers. Malta-Vita, the perfect whole-wheat food, is rich in every nutritive element demanded by the body of the child. Being pure grain product, it simply the whole of the best white wheat and a little salt, mixed with pure barley malt extract—Malta-Vita supplies the body with all those food elements which make bone, blood, muscle and brain and bring perfect health and strength.

The malt extract is added after the wheat has been thoroughly cooked and steamed and converts the starch
of the wheat into maltose, or malt sugar, which is highly nutritious and easily assimilated even by very weak stomachs. Physicians recommend maltose for its strength-giving qualities and Malta-Vita is rich in it. After being mixed with the malt extract, the wheat, rolled into little wheat flakes, goes to the ovens, where it is baked crisp and brown, delicious beyond description.
Try Malta-Vita with milk or cream or fruit, and let the children eat all they want. Malta-Vita is always ready to use. No cooking. All grocers, now 10 cents.

out aspiration and expectation, without self-respect who most readily brutalizes upon hundreds of women, often with their babies in their arms, drinking in the corner public houses, and hundreds of low-browed men and coarse girls. We have some women in America who drink, the depraved women, and an increasing number of those who are called society women.
But the great coster class, the common women of England, number many drinkers and I believe that one of the chief causes is that ancient custom of tradition which sets some up on high as superiors and makes the common people think of themselves as inferior.

Past's Clutch on Church
This great problem of the clutch
of the past upon the present appears in English religious life. The Church of England stands on the past. Her pillars are tradition, ceremonialism and antiquity. It keeps up certain traditions and ceremonies; it is the church of the aristocracy—these give it its hold. I met several Englishmen who spoke of the fact that the clergy
were content to stand on their dignity, keep up the ceremonies and do little else. They do not work for their people nor exert themselves on their sermons. The bishops of the church voting in the House of Lords have been steadily opposed to almost every reform for the last one hundred years. They cling to the main and as long as possible, been jealously against anything which promised a larger life and freedom for the people.

Equality Is in Sight
So with her vast hereditary estates; her ancient aristocracy, her vast class of people taught to think of themselves as inferiors and her traditions, England has a tremendous problem. But there are many forces of progress. The free churches are gaining power every year. They are the conscience of England. They stand for freedom in religion. England is deeply interested in education. One of the living questions is how to enlarge and improve the education of the common people. And all over England there is a strong and growing feeling that the day of the common man is coming.

The colonial Englishman is a force for progress. When he gets away from home he takes in new ideas and when he goes back home he does not forget them. England's colonies are of incalculable benefit to her.
Much Credit Due Albert
During the last few years England
has shown some significant advances.
Drink is slowly declining. When I inquired for the root cause I got from several sources this: it dates back to Queen Victoria's marriage, when Albert, the Prince Consort, came, he brought an influence, pure and wholesome into the court which had been corrupt under the Georges. He was a pure and noble man—Albert—the Good; they called him; he had a marked influence on the English aristocracy and on all life. Consequently drinking in England has begun to decline from the top down. Among the higher classes drinking is increasing in America; it is declining in England. Young businessmen in England do not drink during business hours—
it is not considered proper.

England's Peace
King Edward's influence is good.
He was wild once, but he inherited the sense and nobleness of his father and mother and is just coming into his inheritance. He has the heart of the people. His influence is for peace in Europe. And this leads me to the last thing I have to say of England. We in America have little idea of what it is to live in the constant talk of war, to be perpetually suspicious of some attack by a foreign nation, to hear always rumors of invasion, to talk of the national defenses.
That is the commonplace in English life. It is the everlasting glory of the present government that she is refusing both army and navy. She is just across the channel from Germany and France, but her army is small and her navy is a splendid heroism—a willingness to minimize army matters to join in the forward movement for peace. The effort for international peace is the noblest and loftiest since the slaying of the slave and

Mrs. Joseph Griffin
Another pioneer resident of the town of Rock entered into rest last Friday morning. When Mrs. Joseph Griffin, quietly passed away at her home near Alton, Mary Catherine Kilmer was born in Columbia county, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1837, and was a daughter of the late James Kilmer. In this family relation she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Adam Griffin, of Spencer, Iowa, and a half-sister, Mrs. W. A.
Mott of Scranton, Pa., while her stepdaughters in Rockford, Wis., are Misses M. E. Kilmer, also residing in Scranton. While still a child her parents moved to Scranton and here she was united in marriage with Joseph Griffin, May 16, 1854. In May 1851 they moved to Janesville, Wis., and finally located on the farm in the town of Rock where they resided until Mr. Griffin's death in 1891. Following this sad event, Mrs. Griffin made her home for a time in Janesville, but her love for her farm home soon impelled her to return and she has since resided on the old homestead. Mrs. Griffin was the mother of fourteen children, ten of whom grew to maturity, and nine of whom survive her, one daughter, Mrs. Har-tie Blanchard, having died at her home in Janesville a year ago. The surviving children are: Mrs. Mary Goss of Beloit; Mrs. Jane Withington

a faithful devotion to her home and her family. The funeral services were held at her late home Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. R. C.
Denison of Janesville. The profession

Kilmer of Alton. The interment was

Beer Is Not An Alcoholic Drink

An Eminent Scientist Says It Cannot Properly Be Called Such.

In view of the increasing popularity of beer, it is interesting to note what the really eminent modern scientists say of it. There has been, and still is in certain quarters, a prejudice against beer, but this prejudice, like many prejudices, is based on ignorance. Beer is not a "liquor," as it is frequently called by uninformed people, and it is not an intoxicant. Of course it is possible to drink too much beer, just as it is possible to eat too much meat, but the proper use of beer is declared by eminent doctors to be beneficial to the health.

Dr. E. Brive of Berlin, a well-known scientist, says: "The specific characteristic of beer is not in its alcoholic property. Modern techniques in beer brewing have a tendency to reduce the amount of alcohol in beer and to correspondingly increase the proportions of extracts. Owing to the small amount of alcohol in beer, the same can not properly be called an alcoholic beverage."

Pabst, for sixty years, has been the leader in all scientific developments in the art of brewing, and today Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is the recognized superior of all beers, richest in the extracts (food elements) of which Dr.
Strive speaks, absolutely pure and clean and low in its percentage of alcohol.

Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is so rich in food elements because brewed only from Pabst exclusive eight-day malt.
This malt is grown from best selected barley and grown slowly in Nature's own way, thus retaining all the vital food strength of the barley. It gives Pabst Blue Ribbon the highest food value and makes it most nourishing.
The very small percentage of alcohol in Pabst Blue Ribbon, only three and a half per cent, serves to stimulate the digestive activity of the stomach and cannot be injurious to the health.
Pabst Blue Ribbon, the most healthful beer, the choicest of bottled beers, is the beer for the home.

RIVER ST. RAILS
TO BE REMOVED

CITY COUNCIL SO ORDERED AT MEETING LAST NIGHT.

STATION AT SPRING BROOK

Is an Unfair Burden on City, Says Fire Chief, and Will be Closed if His Recommendations Are Followed.

Acting on the recommendation of Chief Engineer H. C. Klein, the city council last evening passed an order calling upon the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Co. to remove all railway tracks now situated on North River street in front of the West Side fire station within three days after the service of the said order on said company, and in case of failure to do so directing the chief of the fire department to remove the same. Alderman Brockhaus alone voted in the negative. Alderman Merritt of the fire and water committee moved that the report of the fire chief be received and placed on file, pending his motion with the statement that the recommendations would be investigated and considered as soon as the committee could be gotten together.
The report advocates the closing of the Spring Brook station and presents the chief's views on a number of other important matters. The text
in full is as follows:

Year's Total Loss Is Small.
To the Mayor and Common Council
of the City of Janesville:

Gentlemen: I herewith submit the quarterly report of the chief engineer of the fire department, and in doing so will say that we are exceedingly fortunate in the way of fires. So far as I have been able to ascertain at this time, the loss since the first day of January will not exceed $1000.
There have been fifty-three (53)
alarms of fire during this period of time, of which thirty (30) were
"stills."

All of the fire horses at this time are in good serviceable condition. The new one purchased some months ago
is proving exceptionally good for the city. The fire wagons are in good condition, however, some of them could be improved in appearance by
the addition of a coat of varnish, which would also, as stated in my last report, help to preserve the paint.

The condition of the steam fire engine you have been apprised of in a number of my previous reports. I will again request that something be done with the same, as it is not fit for hard service.

Tracks and Fire Escapes.
In a number of my reports I requested that some steps be taken that would ultimately lead to the removal of the railroad tracks in front of the west side fire station. Believing that this is an opportune time to have the same done, on account of the street
being paved, I will therefore, respectfully renew my previous requests.

There are a lot of four-inch pipes
at the number one station, which are of no use to the department. I will therefore suggest that some one be authorized to sell the same.

Some two years ago the common council ordered the chief engineer to enlarge the state law relative to fire escapes. This I have tried to do, but I have not been able to get compliance in one case; I have tried to get the law enforced through the proper channels, but without success. However, I will be persistent and endeavor to have this party comply with the law. I mention the above to you gentlemen of the council so you will know how this matter stands.

Spring Brook Station.
Spring Brook or number three fire station has now been in service about one year and five months, and on account of its location has been found waiting in that it affords no protection to the congested districts. This location is no place for a fire station at this time, and I doubt if it will be for a great many years to come,
using the last ten years as a criterion.
This station was located in this district by the endeavors of a strenuous professional promoter, assisted by others, whom the promoter led to believe that this was the only place for a fire station in Janesville. The promoter with others assured the majority of the common council without question that there would be more factories located there. In fact some of these men went so far as to say there were factories waiting to come,
and the only thing that kept them
from coming was that the fire protection was insufficient. Notwithstanding such promises the above period of time has elapsed and so far as can be seen no new factories are located there, or in other words they have not
"made good."

In the building of fire stations in all cities the population and density of buildings are taken into consideration before such stations are erected, and no city that I am aware of has a fire station erected in such a sparsely settled community as this station is now located.

While I am free to admit that this station furnishes ample protection to Spring Brook district, but if it were possible it would be cheaper for the city of Janesville to insure every building in the district than to maintain this station. The cost of which is about $2,000 per year, which is more than the amount of the annual taxes paid by the Spring Brook district.

Isolated Protection.
Two years ago last May I recommended to the common council that a fire station be erected. In making this recommendation I was very careful to not make any discrimination so as to give one district more fire protection than another, but took the whole city into consideration when I suggested a site, and in this I believe I am right, when I say that no one district should have isolated protection at the expense of the rest of the city.

No doubt if the recommendation which follows is carried out, some of the property holders in Spring Brook will feel aggrieved, however since the time this fire station was built only two new buildings have been erected to that time accepted the conditions there. All those who built previous as they then were, and no thought so far as I ever heard, was given the matter of a fire station, until I suggested that one be built near the Fourth Ward park, when the parties

as above mentioned in this report
"got busy" and the result of their endeavors is self evident.

In conclusion I desire to recommend that fire station number three be closed and the windows boarded up; that the apparatus be moved to number one station, that the same remain in service there until Spring Brook grows to a size that will warrant the expenditure of maintaining a fire station there.

Respectfully submitted,
H. C. KLEIN,
Chief Engineer.

SHIPS ENTHUSE THE PRESIDENT

GETS INSPIRATION FROM FLEET AT OYSTER BAY.

CREDIT FOR CONGRESS

Naval Committee Told That Wisdom of Its Members Has Given United States Finest Navy of All the Nations.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 4.—On the waters of Long Island sound, within view of Sagamore Hill, the president of the United States reviewed Monday the greatest fleet of American warships ever assembled.

There was a ship of war for every state, 45 in all, ranging in size from the magnificent 16,000-ton Louisiana, just completed, to the fleet little torpedo boat and the submarines and including one troop ship and colliers.

In three columns they stretched along the sound: 12 battleships, four armored cruisers, four protected cruisers, four monitors, six destroyers, six torpedo boats, three submarines, a troop ship and five auxiliaries.

In peace paint of spotless white, wreathed in rainbows of flags, ship rails manned, "close aboard," the splendid fleet underwent the ceremony of inspection by the president of the United States.

Inspires Patriotism.

As the Mayflower dropped her anchor at the head of the fleet on the completion of the review the president descended from the bridge, his face wreathed in smiles, and enthusiastically throwing his arms around the shoulders of a group of senators and representatives exclaimed:

"Any man who fails to be patriotically inspired by such a sight as this is a mighty poor American, and every American who has seen it ought to be a better American for it."

The sentiment was echoed enthusiastically by the group around the president.

"And you, gentlemen," he said, addressing the naval committee, "are responsible for it. It is your handiwork and it has all been done within the past ten years. Every one of these ships is a fighter and ready to go into action at a moment's notice. Again you have shown your wisdom in the appropriations for the target practice, for there is where the American navy excels. Our men can shoot and shoot straight, and therein lies our naval strength and our superiority."

Sun Displaces Clouds.

President Roosevelt had a great day. It was his day throughout. In going from the W. E. Emory Roosevelt pier to the Mayflower in the morning he was drenched by rain and spray, and the little launch was tossed about in the roughest manner by the unusually heavy sea which the stiff wind kicked up. The moment he put his foot on the deck of the Mayflower, as if by prearranged signal, the rain suddenly stopped and before the 21 gun salute which welcomed him had been completed the sun was shining. From that time until the review was finished not a cloud marred the spectacle. When the Mayflower anchored at its conclusion the clouds gathered again, threatening rain, but the weather soon cleared and remained so during the remainder of the afternoon and evening. Not an incident occurred to interfere with the carefully arranged programme.

Cruiser Rests in Sand.

The cruiser Des Moines, which ran down from New York in the morning with the foreign naval attaches and congressional naval committee on board, found herself gently resting in the sand in Cold Spring harbor, after safely transferring her passengers to the Mayflower. She floated again shortly as the tide rose, but failed to take her place at the head of the fleet during the review. She was ready, however, to take her passengers back to New York at its conclusion, having sustained no injuries.

The weather was too strenuous out in the sound for the hundreds of smaller craft which undertook the venture in the morning hours, and considerable confusion resulted in the harbor entrance as these boats ran for shelter inside while others of the sightseeing fleet were going out. Several collisions resulted and the tug Margaret ran aground in the cove, but only minor damage was sustained in any instance.

Viewed by Crowds.

When the Mayflower reached the head of the column to begin the review, shortly after 10 o'clock, the fleet was completely surrounded by fully 500 boats large enough to weather the blow, and loaded with sightseers to their full capacity. A large number of three-deck steamers, each carrying thousands of passengers, ran down from New York, and others came from Connecticut ports and towns on the Long Island shore. These all maintained perfect order, not a boat breaking through the cordon of naval launches thrown around the fleet. The effect was to set the navy in a huge frame, and emphasize the grandeur of the display.

Philadelphia, Sept. 4.—The dedication of a monument to the late P. J. McGuire, organizer of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, was the feature of the observance of Labor day in this vicinity.

Maine's Game Disappearing.

It appears that Maine is still in need of further measures to protect her big game. The state cannot hold her own much longer as a hunting ground unless some steps are taken to limit the season. For the last few years about 2,500 deer have been killed annually and 500 moose.—Boston Transcript.

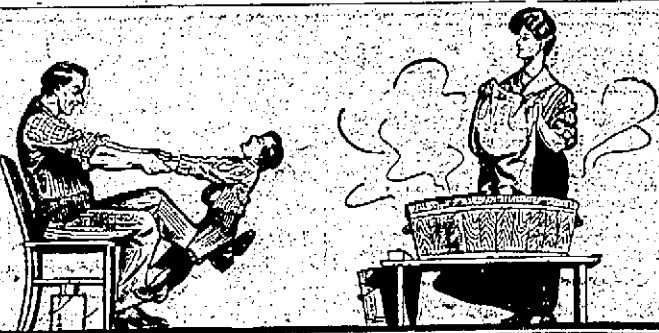

Near the Cars.

An American who recently visited Oxford, says the London Chronicle, asked a railway porter why in blazes they had put the station so far from the colleges. The porter replied gravely: "I dunno, sir, but I suspect they thought it more handy to have it down here by the railway."

Puzzle for Pluvius.

The farmers on one side of the Blue mountains are praying for rain, while those on the other side are praying just as fervently for a drought. It must be a rather delicate undertaking even for Providence to please everybody.

CITY COUNCIL ACTS IN RIVER STREET MATTER.

ON CITY ATTORNEY'S ADVICE

Considerable Important Business Affecting the Highways Transacted at Session Last Night.

When roll call at the city council meeting last evening discovered Aldermen Connelley, Hager, and Fish missing Mayor Hutchinson duly observing that the absentees all belonged to the ranks of hold-over, no-pay aldermen. The finance committee's reports on bills and the salary list were adopted. By the passage of two orders the city clerk was instructed to sign the warrant for the collection of the annual city taxes for 1906 and to deliver the tax rolls with the warrant annexed to the city treasurer for collection; and to have the insurance on the election booths renewed.

Claims Not Disposed Of
On recommendation of Ald. Dulin of the judiciary committee the bonds of P. W. Ryan for the macadamizing of Washington street and Dr. W. H. Judd, the newly appointed member of the fire and police commission, were approved and accepted. Further time was granted this committee for the consideration of the $1,000 claim of H. E. J. Dreiwieser against the city for damage to tobacco laid due to the flooding of the L. B. Carle & Son warehouse, and the $350 claim of John Souliman and E. J. Mount based on similar circumstances.

Street Improvements
On motion of Chairman Sheridan of the highway committee a resolution assessing $332 benefits for the grading of Riverside and Stone streets was passed. The reports of the street assessment committee on the Ravine street improvement, the Washington street washout reconstruction, and the proposals for laying water, gas, and sewer pipes on North and South River street were adopted. Similar action was taken on the assistant street commissioner's report of new sidewalks built and still others recommended. Supt. C. A. Potter's report of 14 men employed 1,012 hours during the two weeks ending Sept. 1, in producing and delivering 330 yards of crushed stone, and the street assessment committee's report of the award of the contract for building drinking fountains in front of the Fourth ward park and at the corner of Center and Western avenues for $245. Further time was granted for the consideration of the city engineer's report on proposals for widening South Blue street from Clark to Racine, and the demand of the Blodgett Milling Co. that the sewerage now discharged under the warehouse from pipes laid on Wall street be diverted to some other point in accordance with an agreement made Nov. 21, 1902. A sidewalk grade for Valentine street was received and accepted. Owners of property on the westerly side of North River street from Mineral Point avenue to Madison street were given permission to lay 4 1/2-foot walks. Permission was granted to John Sauter to move a building from North Academy street to No. 15 Liberty.

River Street Curbing Matter
The laying of the curbing on North River street from Milwaukee street to a point opposite the West Side fire station on the lines of the original plat was directed by an order introduced by Ald. Merritt and passed. The city attorney's opinion to the effect that the Jeffers mill interests had no right to the 18 feet of road way now occupied was quoted. The city engineer was instructed to file a grade for North Academy street from West Bluff to Ravine. Chairman Rudolph of the committee on schools submitted the board of education's report which showed expenses amounting to $1,327.17 for the month of August. The appointment by the mayor of John Dalton, H. M. Weaver, and John Benson as special police officers without pay, was confirmed. The city clerk was instructed to purchase two carloads of paving bricks. The subject of lighting the election booths with electric lamps was broached and Ald. Dulin spoke strongly in disapproval of such a plan. No action was taken. Mayor Hutchinson, just before the meeting adjourned, stated that the session of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities at Ashland, which he had attended as a delegate from Janesville, had proven interesting and profitable. The proceedings would be published in the magazine "Municipality" which comes to each alderman's desk. Ald. Dulin, who accompanied him, made the trip at his own expense "notwithstanding the comments of the Janesville Recorder."

FATAL ENDING OF
A HARMLESS PRANK

Frank McLaughlin Drowned Last Evening as Result of Shooting at Boat Borrowed Without Permission.

Frank McLaughlin, fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William McLaughlin, who reside at 159 Cornelia street, and one of the Gazette's carrier boys, lost his life in the Rock river about a half-mile south of Crystal Springs park, shortly before six o'clock last evening, under circumstances of a most unusual and deplorable nature. In company with Robert O'Hara, another carrier boy, and son of John D. O'Hara, foreman of the Gazette, composing a "room," the young man, immediately after his papers were delivered went to Crystal Springs park to "see their half game." The two boys started to walk back about half-past five o'clock, accompanied with a third lad named Garvy Groat. As they came around the bend near the Pratt stone quarry they passed an empty rowboat, and oars moved to the bank with rope and the idea of a little expedition on the water immediately took possession of one of the trio. The McLaughlin and Groat boys clambered into the craft, but young O'Hara refused to join them.

They had rowed five or six rods down river when someone fired two shots from the bank. From Groat's account it appears that one of the bullets whizzed past McLaughlin's head. At any rate he dropped the oars, jumped up, leaped to the end of the boat, and jumped overboard—despite the protests of the Groat boy, who says he cautioned him to stay aboard but who lost no time in following his example. The water was eight or ten feet deep and the O'Hara boy, who was unable to see what was going on by reason of the willows which fringed the bank in that locality, heard McLaughlin's shrill cry of "Behl!" As he reached in running a point on the bank, opposite the section of the river from whence the sounds had come, he saw the Groat boy clambering up the embankment. He shouted to him to come back, but the frightened lad paid no heed. A moment later he was accosted by a man, perhaps twenty-eight years of age, who was standing at the water's edge. This individual demanded, "Who were you shooting at?" Young O'Hara said that he did not know that he had been shooting at anyone and asked him what had become of the boy who had been with young Groat. The stranger said that he guessed he had "taken out and had run away." The O'Hara boy said that he did not believe that McLaughlin had gotten out. The man then took off his clothes and swam out to get the boat. The craft was named "The Pet" and came from Frank Andrews' boat-livery. A man named Tracy is said to have rented it.

The O'Hara boy called Frank McLaughlin's name several times and then ran all the way to town and informed his father what had occurred. The latter telephoned to Cornelius Murphy at the East Side fire station, who sent word to Officer Morrissey. O'Hara also informed the McLaughlin family. Grappling hooks and poles were secured and George Rogers, Edward Winslow, Robert O'Hara, and the father and mother of the McLaughlin boy set out for the quarry. John O'Hara, Edward Engbrethson, John Boos, Mrs. Edward Winslow, and Miss Mamie McLaughlin, sister of the unfortunate lad, soon joined them with another outfit, making the trip up on the Columbia. Mr. O'Hara also sent for the Groat boy. F. F. Pierson and others went up in launches. "At eleven o'clock last night Messrs. O'Hara and Engbrethson were alone at work, the rest having gone to the city for more aid, and they were joined by P. H. Marskie and Officer Morrissey. The latter had been manipulating a long rake about five minutes when he discovered the body about thirty feet from the shore in twelve feet of water. The remains were taken down river and conveyed to Ryan's undertaking rooms. The funeral will probably be held from St. Mary's church Thursday morning.

When the Groat boy was located he was unable to throw much light on the tragedy. He had been so thoroughly frightened by the gun-play that he swam to shore, and ran without waiting to see whether or not his companion was following him. Frank McLaughlin, who could not swim, had supposed that they were in shallow water when he jumped overboard. Though he, like all boys, was not averse to engaging in a little mischief, he was a manly, straightforward little fellow and his parents, in their bereavement, will have the sympathy of the entire community. The mother is terribly overcome by the severe shock.

PRIMARY DAY SHOWS
BUT LITTLE INTEREST

Voting Light Throughout the City, and Beloit Today Indicates Little Interest.

While many of the candidates have wagonettes out and are driving all the voters they can, to the polls, the vote up to noon throughout the city today was very light indeed. Little interest appears to be taken in this nomination day than is usual. The reason appears to be the complicated system of voting necessary under the present primary law. This is its first test and the voters appear to be afraid of it. In Beloit the same situation exists, only there is less interest shown than in Janesville. How it is throughout the state in general is a question that will only be answered by the returns tonight.

The Law

This primary election law was passed by the legislature of 1905 after considerable agitation in political campaigns for three or four years previous and adopted by vote of a majority of the electors at the ensuing general election. It was amended considerably at the regular and special sessions of the legislature in 1905 and was in force during the spring campaign for the election of city officials but is now to be tried for the first time in a state election.

Four Tickets in the Field
There are four tickets in the field, the democratic-republican, prohibition and social democratic. The secretary of state decided that the official ballots must contain a space for the national republican party also, but no candidates were nominated by that party.

Candidates for state, congressional, senatorial, assembly and county offices will be nominated. There are no contests for the prohibition or social democratic party and so the voting for the candidates for nomination in those parties will be a mere formality.

There are but few contests for the nomination in the democratic party. There are two candidates for nomination for governor, one congressional contest, and but two contests in senatorial districts, one in the Seventh (Milwaukee county) between Anthony Sczerbinski and Rublee A. Cole and one in the Thirteenth district (Dodge county) between William C. North and Paul Huston. There are no contests for nomination for places on the county ticket in Milwaukee county and but few throughout the state except in strong democratic strongholds.

Merry Fights Among Republicans

While there are few contests in the minority parties there are candidates galore in the dominant party. Although there are but two candidates for the nomination for governor and two for lieutenant governor and two for insurance commissioner, there are from three to five candidates for the other places on the state ticket. There are contests for the congressional nomination in all but three of the eleven districts, and in one of them, an independent candidate will qualify after the primaries. Another is a strong democratic district. In one district there are four candidates for congress. In senatorial and assembly districts there are numerous contests.

All Over the State

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 4.—The primary vote all over the state up to noon was only fair. There was no trouble in the Second Congressional district. The voters are confused by primary ballots and those used to elect Gully Adams' successor.

DOMESTIC ART AND BUSINESS POPULAR

Large Freshman Classes in These Two Departments of High School—Opening Day.

With a half day session at which the scholars were given instructions regarding the purchase of new text books, etc., the public schools of the city reopened this morning. There was the usual attendance in all the graded schools but in extraordinary large assemblage of freshmen at the high school. As predicted by Mr. Buell many came from the country and Orfordville and Footville, swelling the enrollment of sophomore, junior and senior classes as well as freshmen. Though the classes will not be permanently arranged for a week or more nor all pupils be settled upon their courses some estimation of popularity of the various lines of study can be made from the first day enrollment. In the business department there are forty-six and in the domestic art department fifteen. These are two of the largest classes on record.

AND THEN GIRL FELT SMALL Not Necessary.

Indignation at Fulsome Compliment Not Necessary.

A Riverside drive girl whose pretty face and attractive figure are sources of embarrassment at times, owing to the comment they excite in public places, tells a good story on herself.

"I was crossing One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street last week to make a few purchases," she says, "when I passed two callow youths lounging in front of a shop. As I went by one of them turned to the other and said in a perfectly audible voice: 'Jim, there's a duck.'"

"I was deliberating between a withering stare and a lofty ignoring of the incident as the proper way to treat such impertinence, when a particularly fine duck dangling just overhead almost brushed my nose. 'The next establishment was a butcher shop and ducks were among the commodities for sale.'"

"For a few minutes I felt so small that I seemed in imminent danger of fading out of existence."—New York Press.

The Wonders of Concrete.

Here are some concrete possibilities. You can build concrete foundations, sidewalks, fences, water troughs, cisterns, water tanks, shelves, cesspools, gutters, floors of all kinds in the cellar, barn and stable, steps and stairs, wall curbs, horse blocks, stalls, hog pens, troughs, chicken houses, corn cribs, ice houses, incubators, collars, mushroom cellars, hotbed frames, bridge abutments, chimneys, ventilator dams, windmill foundations, fence posts, clothes posts and hitching posts. There is one farm where the post and rail fences, and the feed bins are concrete, and in another even the lattice under the house piazza and the laundry stove are made of it. Cases of this kind are extreme and impractical, however.—Farming.

Pull That Worn Her.

The ice trust magnate looked up at the eager young man.

"You want to marry my daughter, eh?"

"That is my ardent wish, sir."

"And what claim have you on my consideration?"

"I know that the case against the ice trust comes up in court next week, sir."

"Yes. What of that?"

"Well, perhaps it isn't worth men, homing, but my father is a professional jurymen."

"She is yours, my boy; she is yours!"

Half Century's Advancement.

It is estimated that the world's international commerce will aggregate this year fully $25,000,000,000. In 1850 the commerce between all the nations amounted to only $4,000,000,000. The increase in the half century has been, therefore, over 600 per cent.

GANS WINS BATTLE ON FOUL BY NELSON

REMARKABLE FIGHT PUT UP IN GOLDFIELD'S ARENA.

ROUGH TACTICS BY "BAT"

White Boy Deliberately Uses His Head to Butt Colored Opponent and Wins Up by Hitting Him in the Groin.

Goldfield, Nev., Sept. 4.—Battling Nelson deliberately fouled Joe Gans in the forty-second round of the best and longest fight seen here in many years. "Both men were tired when the fight ended, but Gans was apparently the stronger. He was away ahead on points, and had smashed and cut Nelson all through the fight without being badly hurt himself. Shortly after the men were in their usual clinch, Nelson had his head on Gans's shoulder and his arm down. Several times he hit Gans below the belt; apparently feeling for a vital spot. At last, he drew back his right arm and hit Gans a vicious blow square in the groin. The colored boy sank to his knees and rolled over on his back.

Gives Fight to Gans.

Referee Siler without hesitation ordered Nelson to his corner and awarded the fight to Gans on a foul. Siler's decision received almost unanimous approval.

Referee Siler stated that while he would not say that the foul was intentional, there was no doubt but that it had been committed. Nelson, he said, had used his usual tactics all through the fight, and while he knew that Nelson was butting whenever he had an opportunity, he did not disqualify him for that because he saw that it was not hurting Gans, and as no other referee had ever disqualified Nelson for doing the same thing, he did not feel like doing it. Besides, the people were there to see the fight, and he did not want to disappoint them.

Cheers Mingled with Hisses.

Siler was loudly cheered as he left the ring, as was Gans, who was carried to his dressing room. Nelson and his seconds were hissed as they departed. Billy Nolan, Nelson's manager, made a disconnected statement in which he said that Gans had promised not to claim the decision on a foul, and yet he jumped at the very first opportunity to make such a claim. All Nelson would say was that Gans was tired and quit.

Gans' Hand is Broken.

Gans in many ways put up a most remarkable battle. His work was the more wonderful when it is known that in the thirty-third round he broke his right hand. Never after that did he strike a blow with the exception of a few short arm jolts while clinching. He did all his work with his left hand, and put it all over Nelson.

Gans' generalship was shown when he broke his hand. In the thirty-third round he landed a hard, right hand punch on the side of Nelson's face. A bone in the hand snapped and Gans stepped back with an expression of pain. He limped around as though he had stepped on his foot or turned it, and no one realized that he had badly injured his right hand; although it was suspected that it might have been injured.

Offers Nelson Another Go.

Gans stated after the fight that Nelson intentionally fouled. He said he knew he could finish Nelson as he was comparatively strong and Nelson was growing weaker all the time. "Larry" Sullivan announced for Gans that he would meet Nelson in two weeks in another fight as he was sure he could whip him and did not want to take advantage of the foul. It is hardly probable, however, that the men will meet again in that time.

The first 15 rounds of the fight were very fast. After that the men slowed up and only at intervals was there a rally.

Nelson Puts Up Good Fight.

Although Gans was far ahead of Nelson in points and most of the time looked like a sure winner, Nelson put up a wonderful fight on his side. The endurance and recuperative powers shown by Nelson were extraordinary. Time and again Gans would jolt him on the jaw, sending the Dane back. His knees would bend and his eyes become glazed; but he always fell into a clinch and held on and would then come back fighting as hard as ever in his peculiar style. The minute's rest at the corner always did him good and he would come up fresh and strong. On nearly half a dozen occasions when it seemed another blow would put the white boy out the going rang and saved him. On several occasions, however, Nelson apparently had the advantage. He would hit Gans as they broke from a clinch and the colored boy would hang on and wrestle.

Colored Boy Clean Fighter.

Gans fought a remarkably clean fight. He was fair in everything and twice when he knocked Nelson down, picked him up. One time when one of Gans' punches knocked Nelson through the ropes, Gans picked him up and helped him to his feet. As the colored boy stood with his hands down, waiting for Nelson to steady himself, the "Butler" gave him a vicious blow in the stomach. He was roundly hissed for this by the crowd.

BRYAN'S LABOR DAY TALK AT DETROIT

FEWER HOURS OF WORK, HE SAYS, ARE BEST FOR ALL.

MEASURE LIFE BY OUTGO

Nebraskan Holds Men Who Produce Are Far Superior to Those Who Spend That Which is Created for Him by Others.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—When William Jennings Bryan arrived with his party of about 100 in Detroit, at noon Monday, over the Grand Trunk, he passed to his carriage through a cheering, applauding crowd, and escorted by the reception committee, was driven to the Hotel Cadillac, where Mayor George P. Codd delivered a formal address of welcome.

Immediately after the reception the party sat down to luncheon, after which they were driven in automobiles to the fair grounds, where a very large crowd greeted the Nebraskan's approach with applause and cheers. The party was driven to the band stand in the grove, where Bryan was to speak. Nearly all in the immediate vicinity of the stand bore the marks of the toiler: It was to these Bryan's address seemed directed. After declaring that he was glad of the opportunity to take part in the exercises of the day dedicated to the interests of those who formed so important a part in all affairs of the country, Bryan said he was impressed, during the last few months of his travels abroad with an idea in connection with labor.

Tell of Social Chasm.

"As I passed through the orient," he said, "I found a great gap between those who stand at the top and those at the bottom of the social structure. I return to my home more than ever believing in the dignity of labor and the importance of cultivating a sentiment among the people which makes them respect more the man who toils than the one who idles in society. I trust we shall never have in this country a leisure class, if by that we mean those with nothing to do. I cannot conceive any place in a well regulated society for men or women who have nothing to do."

Outgo Exceeds Income.

"In this country," where we have the best of everything," continued Mr. Bryan, "we ought to have the best ideal of labor. I want to cultivate the sentiment that the man who does something for the welfare of the nation is better than the man whose only ambition is to spend something."

"I wish to emphasize this—that no man whose conscience is what it ought to be, is content to receive from society more than he gives to society. If we measure life, not by its income, but its outgo, I believe we would strengthen the bonds of fraternity and deal more wisely with our social and economic problems."

Favors Eight-Hour Day.

Regarding 8 hours of labor, Mr. Bryan said:

"I believe in the eight-hour day, and this is why: I believe that the laboring man is justly entitled to it and that society at large would be better if he had it. You cannot separate a man from society; you cannot deal with the question as one purely of class. No line should be drawn between the boy and his aspirations. Those who say the laboring man would waste his time if allowed fewer hours, argue, no more so than an old colored man I met in Alabama. In reply to my question, why he didn't learn to write, he said: 'Oh, I knew a fellow once who learned to write. He forged a note and was sent to the penitentiary, so I never learned.'"

Vital Element in Plants.

Nitrogen is so vital to the growth of plants that large sums are expended for fertilizers rich in that element. So far chemistry has done nothing effective in the way of obtaining nitrogen from the atmosphere. Yet it is calculated that the nitrogen in the air weighs no less than four billion million tons.

DUKE OF DEVIL-MAY-CARE

By Harris Dickson.

"No, no, no," she sprang up with a cry, almost a scream. He turned and caught her as she came flying to him. Vainly she battled to control herself; her whole tense body relaxed and gave way in his arms.

"You must go, go," she whispered— "go, and—take me—"

Once she had formed the determination, once she dared breathe it to him, she pleaded desperately, boldly, defiantly—pleaded for a woman's very life.

"Yes, yes, you must take me. I could not bear to stay here while you were wandering in that dreadful country. I wouldn't even know where you were; you might be ill—no one to nurse you; you might die. I can't let you go; I can't, I can't."

The slender fingers were clasped like cords of brass behind his neck, so unyieldingly she held him. The round young arms touched his throat, and the throbbing of her pulses maddened him.

His heart stood still, then bounded upward with one great burst of exultation.

"Take me, Noel; I'll be no trouble. Indeed I won't, I promise—" and the blinding mist swam before her. She dashed away the tears and raised her eyes—steady eyes they were, brave eyes that did not falter.

"You said just now that it would be very easy for you to go. I can go just as easily, I have no father, no mother, no one to miss me or care—no one but you."

Her waving hair brushed his cheek, the trembling lips were close to his, the dampness of her eyes fell upon his hands, the tumult of his heart beat against his breast—and he was not made of rock.

A new and boundless world stretched out suddenly before him. He saw a new land, a new life—vast mountains, the surging seas, the wild free birds—and love. He grew stronger, his brain cleared, and life glittered with a new glory. The strength of his arms crushed her to him, and Anita knew that she had won.

He loosened her slowly, led her to a chair and took his seat beside her. It could be done, of course it could be done; but he must think.

"Yes, yes," he began, excitedly. "It can be done, easily done. But we could not smuggle your trunk out of this house. If you haven't a bag, I'll borrow Joe's without letting him know it."

"I have one," she nodded.

He seemed to steady himself, and became quieter under this precious responsibility.

"Then pack it at once, just the things you need most, money, more, a few trinkets, maybe. I'll come for it myself, to-night, to this door."

"Now let me see," he went on, more calmly. "to-morrow is Monday. You've never been here at Mardi Gras? No? Everybody will be on Canal street at 12 o'clock watching the arrival of Rex. Where were you going to see the parade from? Club gallery? Boston, of course. All right. I'll meet you at the corner of Baronne and Canal, just as you get off the car. You must manage to give them the slip some way—a girl can be clever enough for that. We will get lost in the crowd, and take a cab as far as the levee. You know I must keep out of sight as much as I can. A lot of people have seen me in New Orleans, and I might be arrested. This morning I did not care, but—"

Suddenly there came a knock on the door. He turned pale to his very lips, and sprang erect. Every knock on the door and every step on the street would frighten him now.

"Come in," Anita called.

Duke could feel himself trembling as the door opened. Mrs. Chaudron stood on the threshold and smiled.

"Anita, you must ask Mr. Duke to dine with us this evening at seven. Just the family, no company; we are all so tired."

She smiled again and vanished.

Duke turned to Anita and laughed recklessly. "All right, I'll do it; we might as well die game." Then he sat down again, completely unnerved, as one who has passed through a moment of terror. For a few minutes he sat there silently, thinking.

"Yes," he said, half to himself, "I believe I'll do it; it would be much safer. There are thousands of masks on the street; I'll get me a black domino—"

"Good! Good!" Anita clapped her hands gleefully, as the April sun that bursts out through a storm.

Duke looked at the girl and wondered at such childish effervescence mingled with so much of resolution and courage. But he did not even smile.

"It would be safer," he said, rising quietly from his chair, "and we will take no unnecessary risks. Good-by, I must go now, I have a lot of things to do—find the ship's captain, make all arrangements, and get back here by seven. Oh, by the way," he turned from the door, "as I'm coming here to dinner, maybe I'd better take your things with me when I leave. Then we'll have nothing to hamper us to-morrow. Hide them right here, under this sofa."

He had kissed her good-by for the last time, and the last time after that, then for the very last time, and had opened the door. She stood looking at him so smilingly that he closed the door again.

"Anita," he held the girl's face tightly between both his hands, "Anita, look at me, child, do you realize what this is that you are going to do?"

She did look at him, fairly, honestly, bravely.

"What else could I do?"

CHAPTER XIX.
THE BIRD IN THE BUSH

When Mr. Henry Baker let go the iron pickers and dropped to the banquet in front of the little red house at the hospital, he had definitely made up his mind.

"Rock on, I'll dig," he said.

In his deliberations there was always a leaning to the side of personal safety; like the read in the fable, he knew the wisdom of bending before the storm. He did not begin to run, at once that would have been unwise and unprofessional. He whistled carelessly, and sauntered, squinting with one eye behind him. But when he had turned a corner and put a solid brick building between himself and the little red house, it was "eyes front, and double-quick."

A car passed, he boarded it. It mattered little which way the car was going; that was his car. He craved distance, and did not care about direction.

Late in the afternoon he, with Jimmy Fitz, leaned across a slippery little table in the rear of Slippery Ed's saloon. Being Sunday, the front door was closed, for on Sunday the front door must not suspect what the back door does. The resort was comfortably full, so were most of its patrons.

But the aristocracy—men like Hon. James Fitzgerald, who could give Slippery Ed a world of annoyance—the aristocracy need not come into contact with the rabble.

Jimmy Fitz had his Sunday table reserved; he and Baker talked privately, but not politely.

"You did it yourself," snarled Jimmy, as he set down his gin fizz.

"Hi didn't," Baker maintained, "you let him go yourself, he come out of the prison door right past you, and you never said a blooming word."

"Well, wasn't he got off in a cab with you, and oughtn't you to have brought him back?"

"Hi didn't know he was going in the blooming cab—an you didn't know it neither. Facts is, Jimmy," Baker laughed in the other man's face, "fact is, Jimmy, that feller Balfour, cussed me till Hi got kind o' dizzy—made me head swim. Taint no sense in us gettin' mad at each other; it's my fault an' your fault. Hi couldn't 'a' it the ground with my 'a'."

"Sufferin' Caesar, wasn't he a cusser!" Jimmy Fitzgerald said. "He must be a steamboat mate afore he started out for a lawyer. I've heard river men an' circus men an' boss an' boss stevedores—but I'm here to tell you, Henny, that Vicksburg lawyer took the rag off'n the bush an' walked right away wild it. An' didn't none of us get second money neither."

"Jesse wait till you meet Mr. Chaudron," suggested Baker, glancing toward the door.

"I ain't a-goin' to meet 'im," said Jimmy tersely. "Here, boy, 'nother fizz—two more."

Presently Baker set down his empty glass and drew his chair a little closer to Fitz—Baker was a thrifty soul.

"Now look 'ere, Jimmy," he said, "let's talk sense. O' course that feller didn't know nothin' about the old woman; but 'e's wanted some'er else—sure as 'ell's a mousetrap—an' I'll bet there's a jolly good reward in it, too. You oughter seen what a 'ot scrap 'e put up when that feller Vance tackled 'im in Pedro's Place. That's what made me so leery of 'im. An' 'e's never opened 'is head the ole time we had 'im. If 'e'd been a common 'vag' 'e'd squealed like a stuck pig."

Jimmy Fitz sat drumming on the table, listening, and Henny Baker went on to explain.

"You know we picked 'im up on the levee, among a lot of sailors off those South American ships. Hi seen 'im two or three times talkin' to Cap'n Paturoz down there at John's Onse. You can bet your sweet life, Jimmy, 'e's fixin' to pull him from 'ere an' 'e ain't goin' to leave no card, neither."

It made very little difference how many "silversides" Jimmy Fitzgerald drank, he never got drunk in the head. Sunday was his day off, and he did not object to getting his legs pretty badly tangled, provided he kept his head clear. He paid close attention to what Baker said, then seemed to digest it.

Decide Yourself

The Opportunity Is Here, Backed by Janesville Testimony.

Don't take our word for it. Don't depend on a stranger's statement. Read Janesville endorsement. Read the statements of Janesville citizens. And decide for yourself. Here is one case of it: Mrs. Charles Potter, of 123 Washington St., Janesville, Wis., says: "My husband had kidney trouble for a number of years and it affected his back and limbs so, as to keep him complaining all the time, with pain. The backache and pain in the loins were especially severe. He used a number of kidney and backache remedies that did not help him, and finally seeing Doan's Kidney Pills recommended in the Janesville papers, I went to the People's Drug Company and got a box for him. The result was entirely satisfactory. The pains and backache left him and he had no return of the trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

LONE MAN HOLDS UP STAGE

PASSENGERS TAKE SNAPSHOTS OF COOL BANDIT.

Soldier Who Wanted to Shoot the Thief Prevented from Doing So by Fellow Travelers.

Wawona, Cal., Sept. 4.—Three miles from Ahwahnee a Yosemite stage was held up Monday afternoon. It was driven by Bright Gillespie, who took President Roosevelt and his party through the park on their visit here three years ago.

The robber appeared at a bend in the road and told the driver to come on up. The driver drove until he was within a few feet of the robber, then stopped. The robber ordered the passengers out. The driver was told to go on some 50 feet more.

The bandit then lined the passengers up in the road. Wertheimer Bishop of New York was the first searched and $7.50 taken from him. Mr. Bishop snapped the robber's picture. He says the robber's voice was very low and calm. He worked carefully and every chance was given the driver to shoot him had he had a gun.

A. F. Ormsbee, a friend of Mr. Bishop's, from Brooklyn, N. Y., lost $13. He took two snapshots of the robber. Two of the passengers were women. They took the holdup as though it was a part of the trip.

A soldier passenger was not disturbed any more than asked to get out of the stage. He had a loaded rifle, and as the bandit was rather careless in the manner of facing the passengers the soldier took aim, but was prevented from shooting by his fellow passengers, who feared his aim might not be true and that the robber might have accomplices.

The Wells-Fargo treasure box was taken out, rifled and the contents burned. It is not known how much this box contained.

The United States mail was taken out in search of another treasure box, but not disturbed further. The man is without doubt the same one who held up the stage last year in August and this year in July.

CHICAGO BANKER IS ARRESTED

Paul O. Stensland Captured in Tangier by State's Attorney.

Tangier, Morocco, Sept. 4.—Paul O. Stensland, president of the Milwaukee Avenue State bank of Chicago, was arrested here Monday morning by Henry Olsen, assistant state's attorney, who had followed the fugitive from Chicago through England and Spain to Gibraltar and this port, where the prisoner arrived Sunday night.

A telegram addressed to Stensland by his son announcing an important remittance and which was addressed to Gibraltar or Tangier, put justice on the track.

Olsen who was in Paris on vacation, was at once instructed to follow up the clue and arrest the fugitive. On his arrival at Tangier he was convinced that he was on the right track, as Stensland had presented himself at several banks and tried to get letters of credit for large sums. He had actually effected a deposit of $12,000 in the Comptoir d'Escompte.

It is a strange coincidence that the fugitive had assumed the name of Olsen, and profiting by this fact the attorney presented himself at Stensland's hotel representing himself as his son, and learned that the latter had just left for Gibraltar. Olsen was just in time to catch the boat. Reaching Gibraltar he found that Stensland had just started back to Tangier on board the German steamer Oldenbourg. Olsen immediately chartered a steamer and by traveling under full steam arrived at Tangier before the Oldenbourg, which he boarded on its arrival at 3:30 o'clock Monday morning. He recognized the fugitive and dogged his steps until 9:30, when Stensland went to the British post office and requested that all mail addressed to the name of Olsen be forwarded to Mogador. As he was signing the request form Olsen interposed, saying:

"I am Olsen, sign your own name Stensland."

Stensland was thunderstruck, and after vainly protesting for some moments allowed himself to be conducted to the American legation, where he is closely guarded awaiting the arrival of a warrant, which has been requested by telegraph from Washington.

YALE'S "WATER WAGON"

Latest Student Enterprise to Help Pay College Expenses.

THRIVING TRADE IN VARIOUS LINES

No Excuse For Socks Full of Holes. Buttonless Shirts or Shirts Without Socks—Moving and Storage Company Planned—A Freshman's Experience With Trade Solicitors.

The Yale "water wagon," with the trade mark, "Cleanliness Before Godliness—but Here You Get Them Both," is the latest commercial enterprise of Yale students that recently made its appearance on the Yale campus, says the Haven correspondent of the Boston Herald. The spirit of commercialism has been growing steadily with in the radius of the university boundaries until now no less than half a dozen corporations are either humbugging along with Yale men behind them or are as yet in their state of infancy with a glowing future before them.

About a year and a half ago two Yale students started "The University Suit Pressing company." Business came with a rush. A committee of New Haven tailors and cleaners called on President Hadley, so the story goes, and asked him to put a stop to this new commercial enterprise, but he told them that it was not within his province to interfere as long as the students backing the enterprise maintained their scholarship standing, and that they would have to compete with the college men for the trade. The business has now become so remunerative that it has been decided to bestow the management upon needy and capable under class men when the present owners graduate. It will thus become a sort of benevolent fund to be handed down from class to class.

Socks full of holes and shirts minus buttons induced another company of Yale men to try their luck running a laundry company. "The Yale Student Laundry" made its appearance with the conspicuous announcement, "Run by college men." The company announced that it would care for all laundry work but soft and starch work and guaranteed to carefully mend all socks and torn underwear. It looked for a time as if there would not be washerwomen enough to be found in the city limits to care for all the clothing that on the first Monday morning poured into the office of the company. The managers, however, jumped at the chance to make such a rich harvest, and enough washers were secured to cleanse all the clothes of a regiment, and the women whose office was simply to mend and repair were soon drying a thriving business. Now this concern has its own shop and delivery wagon that the students drive themselves, and all the details of the business are managed by Yale men, thus giving work to students who are paying their own way through the university.

Another company recently organized is the "Yale Shoe Repairing company." Weekly calls are made at the dormitories for shoes that need soles, heels or repairing of any kind. The members of this firm have competent shoemakers to do the work while they solicit the orders and attend to the delivery and other details of the business.

The Yale Mercantile association has been doing business on the Yale campus for some time, and through this organization employment is secured for a large number of college men who have to pay a part of their college expenses.

At the junior promenade held in New Haven the latter part of last January a number of the Yale men did a big business as amateur florists. During this festival week every year about 200,000 violets are sold to the Yale men for their fair guests. The Yale men made a canvass of the campus weeks before the Yale prom, and, armed with big orders, went into the floral markets of New York and brought back to New Haven a ton, more or less, of flowers, which they sold during the prom week. They cleared enough to carry them comfortably through the rest of the year. Hereafter violets for Yale events, like the football game and the promenade, will be retailed by the Yale men on the campus.

The "Yale water wagon" is the latest commercial enterprise of them all, and although of recent date is already doing a thriving business. The water dispersed by the water wagon is drawn from a spring outside of New Haven.

While plans are as yet immature, another new enterprise will be launched as soon as college closes this summer. This will be a moving and storage company, which will look after the worldly possessions of the Yale undergraduates while they are home for the summer.

The first two weeks of the freshman's stay at Yale he is apt to be visited every evening by from one to ten solicitors, who have everything to sell from a suit of clothes to a cigarette. The advantages and necessities of class pipes, tobacco, cigarettes, banners, the college paper and various knickknacks are brought to the green freshman by the knowing upper class men, and he invariably succeeds in dumping a large consignment on his victim. He will apparently happen into a victim's room just as a sophomore is putting him through some stunts and will immediately rescue the new man and sell him a class pipe, which the gullible freshman feels obliged to buy. In the course of a couple of years the bunked freshman himself squares accounts by operations on the new men coming to college.

STUDENTS OF VESUVIUS.

Men of Science Who Have Held to Their Posts Amidst the Awful Upheavals.

Sig. Matteucci, director of the royal observatory, in refusing to quit his perilous post, near the crater of Vesuvius, only followed the example of his predecessors. During the tremendous outbreak of April, 1872, Sig. Palmieri stood by his instruments amid smoke and showers of red-hot stones, while two immense streams of lava, diverted by the rock on which the observatory stood, flowed by on each side. The first student of Vesuvius of whom there is any record, the elder Pliny, may be said to have started the tradition of scientific coolness. It is known on the authority of his nephew that it was "philosophical curiosity" which led him to his doom on the Vesuvian plain in that awful year of 79 A. D.

"When hastening to the place from which others fled with the utmost terror," the nephew wrote, "he steered his direct course to the point of danger, and with so much calmness and presence of mind as to be able to make and dictate his observations upon the motion and figure of that dreadful scene." The brave old philosopher retired to rest that night in the house of a distracted friend. Pliny was so little disturbed that he "fell into a deep sleep, for, being pretty fat, and breathing hard, those who attended without actually heard him snore."

But Vesuvius increased in violence, and the party had to take to the open fields, with pillows on their heads (tied on with napkins), as a protection against the storm of stones. But after all Vesuvius dealt mercifully with the man who left his safe quarters at sea for the work of study and research, for his body was afterward found, as the famous letter to Tacitus tells, "without any marks of violence upon it, exactly in the same posture in which he fell, and looking more like a man asleep than dead."

Nature's Wise Provision. Every year a layer of the entire sea 14 feet thick is taken up into the clouds; the winds bear their burden into the land and the water comes down in rain upon the fields; to flow back through rivers.

Hottest Spot on Earth. The hottest place in the world is the southwestern coast of Persia, on the Persian gulf. Here in July and August the thermometer climbs to 130 in the afternoon and never, day or night, falls below 100.
